Chinese scientists have discovered the existence of a new type of coronavirus in the body of the bats

Corona china

Chinese scientists have discovered the existence of a new type of coronavirus in the body of the bats. They claimed to have found the virus in a study published on Tuesday (February 7th). Like the virus responsible for the epidemic of Covid 3, it is also capable of infiltration into the human body. Scientists fear the spread of infection. Chinese media The Saud China Morning Post reported.

LENS ASIA

Chinese scientists have discovered the existence of a new type of coronavirus in the body of the batsChinese scientists have discovered the existence of a new type of coronavirus in the body of the bats. They claimed to have found the virus in a study published on Tuesday (February 7th). Like the virus responsible for the epidemic of Covid 3, it is also capable of infiltration into the human body. Scientists fear the spread of infection. Chinese media The Saud China Morning Post reported.

The study says another type of corona virus has been found. HKU Five-Cov is capable of infection with human beings and other organisms, including the virus Renowned virus expert Shi Jhangli was led by the study. The Guangzhou Laboratory researcher has worked with the Guangzhou Academy of Sciences, Uhan University and the Uhan Institute of Viology.

The existence of this coronavirus was first found in Hong Kong. It is included in the Marbekovirus subgroup that is responsible for the infection of Mars. This virus is also capable of infection of angiutensin converting enzymes such as Saras-Cov to Virus responsible for the epidemic.