Israeli Strike in Gaza Kills Al Jazeera Journalist

Photo: Al jazeera

An Al Jazeera video journalist has been killed in an Israeli drone strike on the central Bureij refugee camp in Gaza.

According to the Qatar-based news outlet, cameraman Ahmed Wishah was killed on Saturday (June 20) when an Israeli drone targeted a residential building. Several civilians were also reported injured in the attack.

An Al Jazeera correspondent said the drone directly struck the building. Ahmed Wishah, who was at the scene, suffered critical injuries and later died.

Earlier this year, another member of the same family, Mohammed Wishah, was also killed in an Israeli attack in April.

Meanwhile, the Israeli military claimed that the journalist had links to Hamas and that he was the intended target of the strike. However, it did not provide any independent evidence to support the allegation.

The Israeli army further alleged that Ahmed Wishah had been involved in military activities inside Gaza, sparking renewed controversy over the circumstances surrounding the attack.

According to the international media watchdog Reporters Without Borders, more than 200 media workers have been killed since the Gaza conflict began in October 2023, with many losing their lives while carrying out their professional duties.