

New fire in Los Angeles

Los Angeles fire

A new fire has broken out in a large area north of Los Angeles, America. After Palisades and Yaton, the city's northern Castaic Lake-adjacent area is now burning. 30 already from that area

A new fire has broken out in a large area north of Los Angeles, America. After Palisades and Yaton, the city's northern Castaic Lake-adjacent area is now burning. The local administration has already ordered more than 30,000 people from that area to leave their homes.

The fire that started on Wednesday night has spread anew near Los Angeles.

Meanwhile, at least 21 square kilometers of trees and shrubs have been burnt. The fast-spreading fire is destroying trees and shrubs there.

Castaic Lake near the town of Santa Clarita, about 35 miles north of Los Angeles. Many people live in the area around the lake.

The 'massive fire' that broke out in the Castaic Lake area posed an immediate threat to the lives of local residents.

The fire is spreading faster due to gusty winds. Dry and gusty winds forced firefighters to rush to bring the fire under control. The administration has ordered all the residents of the area to be cautious in that situation.

It is also said to be ready to leave the house at any moment.

A section of the main road has been closed in the West Coast area. As a result, the passengers have to face massive traffic jams on the road. An alert has also been issued for Peaches Jail in Castaic. The 4,600 inmates in the jail can be moved at any time.

Rows of buses are prepared for that.

This month there was a fire in the decorated city of Los Angeles. At least 24 deaths have been reported there. Eight bodies were found on the Palisades side. The bodies of the remaining 16 people were found from the direction of Yaton. Thousands of houses have been burnt. Millions of people have become homeless. California Governor Gavin Newsom fears that this may be the most devastating natural disaster in American history.

The Eaton and Palisades fires in the Los Angeles area are partially contained. The California Department of Forestry and Fire Protection said the Eaton fire is 91 percent contained and the Palisades fire is about 70 percent contained. At least 28 people have died in this fire which started from last January 7, nearly 16 thousand houses have been destroyed..