Ahead of the 13th National Parliamentary Election, the Election Commission (EC) will publish the final voter list on November 18. New voters who turn 18 by October 31 will also be included. The draft list will be published on November 1, followed by the final list after resolving objections and corrections.

As part of the preparations for the upcoming 13th National Parliamentary Election, the Election Commission has announced the date for publishing the final voter list. The draft voter list will be published on November 1, allowing voters to verify their information and submit objections.

On Monday (September 22) evening, the EC issued a notification regarding the matter. The notice stated that new voters turning 18 by October 31 will also be included in the final list.

In a recent letter sent to field-level officials, the EC Secretariat mentioned that objections, claims, or correction requests related to the draft list will be settled by November 17. Thereafter, the final voter list will be published on November 18.

Earlier, on July 31, the EC had published a supplementary final voter list.
